MIND OVER MATTER SEMINAR | BUILDING RESILIENCE AND MOTIVATION IN COLLEGE

The TEACH SOCIETY successfully conducted a seminar entitled “Mind Over Matter: Building Resilience and Motivation in College” exclusively for first-year students. The activity aimed to support freshmen in adjusting to the demands of college life by providing them with strategies to build resilience and maintain motivation during their academic journey. The seminar created an avenue for participants to learn practical approaches in managing stress, overcoming challenges, and cultivating a positive mindset as they begin their collegiate experience. Through the guidance and insights of the invited resource speaker, the students were inspired to develop determination, self-discipline, and optimism in facing their new academic environment. This accomplishment not only empowered the first-year participants to adapt effectively to college life but also strengthened the TEACH SOCIETY’s commitment to nurturing the holistic growth of students from the very start of their higher education.
